K. Studies in Human Communication Science, University of Utah.Q: MySQL IF condition before INSERT statement Hi I have following SQL which displays values from two tables and insert into third table INSERT INTO `test` (`title`) SELECT `test`.`*`, `seminar`.`seminar_id` FROM `test` LEFT JOIN `seminar` ON `test`.`seminar_id` = `seminar`.`seminar_id`; How to get the value of `seminar.seminar_id` which is 1,2,3 depending on the condition of the "seminar.seminar_id" itself. So that if "seminar.seminar_id" is 1 then it must add the value 1 in seminar_id and if "seminar.seminar_id" is 2 then it must add the value 2 in seminar_id etc. I would like to do this as I am using it in another stored procedure where I am doing similar query except that it uses $seminar_id which is passed from another procedure. Note: I have tested following code which I am attaching here just for reference SELECT `seminar`.`seminar_id`, IF(`seminar`.`seminar_id` = 1, 1,0 ) as month, IF(`seminar`.`seminar_id` = 2, 1,0 ) as year, IF(`seminar`.`seminar_id` = 3, 1,0 ) as category, IF(`seminar`.`seminar_id` = 4, 1,0 ) as type, IF(`seminar`.`seminar_id` = 5, 1,0 ) as class, IF(`seminar`.`seminar_id` = 6, 1,0 ) as level from `seminar` WHERE `seminar`.`seminar_id` IN ( SELECT `test`.`seminar_id` from `test` ) but the problem is that this is not dynamic as I have to pass the value 1,2,3,4,5 etc. which is dynamic as there

Now, instant availability of information is vital to many, and so are the related services offered by the Internet. Two of these services that are important are access to news and access to music. The news, in particular, has become much more accessible as the real time news is made available on news websites with headlines and image; it is also made accessible as news aggregators have emerged to provide summarized news and links to the actual news. The music has similarly become much more accessible as sites have been developed that enable users to upload and listen to music. The ability to listen to music has been very important to many people, and so the sites that enable uploads and listening to music have made their webpages more accessible. Some of the Internet sites that provide these services are Pandora and YouTube, and they both take a similar approach in that users are able to upload and listen to music. However, while the user of Pandora and YouTube can make their music playlists available as a whole to the public, what has not been possible is for the user to enable other users to access these playlists when they are intended for exclusive use with others. Unfortunately, the ability for a user to create a playlist of music that will be available to others, when that user is not also listening to that music or even available to share such music, has not been available. This has been due to the fact that the sites that provide services of this type have built their sites as providing only video, audio, or music based services, or perhaps images or text only services, but not services that provide both video, audio, and text, and perhaps images and audio. Other sites, however, have begun to incorporate the need for a system that enables, among other things, a user to submit a playlist to 0cc13bf012

For the first time, the two main electrical vehicle charging networks, the UK EV Connect network and the UK charging network, are working together to further improve the UK's electrical car charging infrastructure. Held at the Shell Technology Centre in Milton Keynes, the event brought together industry players from both networks to discuss future developments in the UK. More than 100 people attended to find out how to make electric cars better by making the charging of EVs more accessible. EV Connect and the UK charging network are part of the same organisation, and each is independently owned and operated. They both support the roll-out of the UK's first regional high-speed charging infrastructure, which is set to be operational in as little as 12 months. Vidar Helgesen, Chief Executive Officer of the UK charging network, said: "In the two years that we've been working on the UK's charging infrastructure, we've come a long way. But there's a lot more to do. "With the upcoming EV Connect network opening to the public, we're excited to be working together with the EV Connect partners to further improve our system to make electric car charging more accessible to more people." Andrew Gooding, Chief Executive Officer at EV Connect, said: "The two networks can work together better than ever to improve the way we charge electric vehicles, as we anticipate that the two networks will begin to share a common charging infrastructure shortly. "EV Connect are very excited to work closely with the UK charging network to ensure that our planned network of more than 400 public charging sites are delivered in the future. Together, we will ensure that charging is a standard part of the UK's road network, and will ensure that people living in the most remote and inaccessible parts of the country are able to continue to benefit from electric car technology."
